ACAS, whose stated aim is to “improve organisations and working life through better employment relations” has revamped its website. It provides up-to-date information, advice and training information.

A new ‘A-Z of Work’ section has been added which has over 50 topics containing advice leaflets on all aspects of the employment relationship.

Within the main headings, there are various booklets, hand books and self guides.

It is well worth having in your favourites list. The link is www.acas.co.uk
