The Trade Union Congress has produced a guide to equality law for Union representative, officials and advisors.

It explains the context in which discrimination operates in the UK, covering race, sex, disability, sexual orientation, religion, and age discrimination, as well as equal pay.

For those with the time on their hands to familiarise themselves with this it must be recommended. Knowing where Union representative, officials and advisors are coming from will better enable employers to avoid pitfalls of equality law and ensure proper compliance.

It can be found on the TUC's website.
